The Southern Branch of ACAMH is delighted to host this relevant, informative and practical day on the new IDP Resources. The aim of the Inclusion Development Programme, launched in 2007 by the Department for Children, Schools and Families as part of its National Strategies to maximise the potential of children with special educational needs and support schools and early years settings in managing their needs through web-based materials.

Dr Jones will open her workshop with a discussion on a number of topics relating to educational issues for school-age children and young people on the spectrum, before focusing in particular on:

- the evidence base for interventions – consensus on key principles which underpin effective practice
- the relationship between psychometric characteristics and learning styles in children with an ASD
- the benefits of TEACCH
- classroom management strategies
- IDP Programme resources: an introduction to the newly launched DVD and web-based resources for those working with the under-fives and for staff in mainstream primary and secondary school

This workshop is suitable for professionals from a variety of backgrounds (teaching, psychology, nursing, psychiatry, social work etc) who have some experience of working with children on the autism spectrum.
